Soft Skills Bootcamp 2019: Est: September 2019

While today's employees are technically competent, they often lack what is commonly referred to as "Soft Skills" – Work Ready skills such as: communication, problem solving, customer service, teamwork, and conflict resolution. They leave school knowing "things" but not "people." They're good at the "what" but not so good with the "who." In fact, the most common feedback from employers, workforce development professionals and employment agencies is that while today's employees are technically competent, they often lack the important "soft skills." Now more than ever those entering the workforce need a crash course on the soft skills!
